SHOOTING SPORTS

Organized shooting sports will help keep your shooting skills sharp. When going to the range and plinking at metal targets seems to help me with accuracy. When you add a shot timer and incorporate speed and accuracy, people tend to show what they would be capable of when in a high-pressure situation.

It's one thing to go out and shoot by yourself. When you have your peers standing behind you, ribbing you when you miss a shot you should make or give you anatta boy when you do a good job tends to help hone your skills even more.

USPSA shooting and Steel Challenge are great options for filling this need. This is not just training but it is fun. If not our range check out some of the other local competitions in the area.

GETTING OUT OF THE DOLDRUMS

It has been a good while since I've published a newsletter. I'm going to have to be honest, there just hasn't been anything good to say about the shooting industry the last few months. If you go back in history, there has always been a run on guns and ammo during an election year. Another factor that causes people to go for guns and ammo is civil unrest. Throw in a 100-year pandemic and you have a trio of reasons the shooting industry is limping along with no foreseeable end in sight.

People look at the stock market as a win some lose some proposition. Me when I get in the market it goes down. When I get out it goes up. My investment skills are not the best in the world. Guess what I invested in this year, that's right, a shooting range. Nobody in their right mind would invest in a shooting sport when nobody can get guns or ammo and when they can it is extremely expensive.

Anyone who had read my newsletters in the past knows my primary passion is to help people become responsibly armed citizens. This through training both in the classroom and on the range. Shooting is a perishable skill. That means if you don't use it you lose it. So, key to staying on top of your game is practice. There is no ammo required options like dry fire programs or computer-generated shooting simulation. Nothing takes the place of popping some caps in targets though.

A shooting sport that helped me to keep my shooting skills somewhat up to date was USPSA and steel challenge shooting. I have not shot in many competitions, but I enjoyed it so much I wanted to build a venue that would accommodate starting a USPSA club and monthly local competitions. In my gun business I also had numerous people ask about having a range long enough to sight in their hunting rifles. We will be in the process of starting a USPSA club at Natural Right Firearms. If you are interested in being involved in a shooting club, please let me know. I will offer some incentives to annual members if you join the USPSA and our club.

The 6 handgun bays will have target holders for those wishing to practice their skills. The Rifle bay has target holders and shooting benches that can be used. There is one laydown bench also and covered sheds at all these locations. Targets will be available for purchase or you can provide your own if you wish.
